

BACHELOR OF CRIMINAL JUSTICE AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

BRIDGEWATER HOUSE

CORRECTIONS

Become an authority in ensuring the safety and welfare of citizens with a bachelor's degree in corrections from Tiffin University. Our program will prepare you for a diverse career, from advocating for juveniles to managing criminals and ensuring their well-being. You will take classes in probation, parole, case management and crisis intervention to be qualified for several career tracks that involve helping law offenders, their families and communities.

As a Tiffin University graduate with a degree in corrections, you will be part of the backbone of the American justice system. Our corrections program offers students the unique opportunity to interact with working professionals from the field. Our faculty come from the correctional environment and bring to the classroom their professional practice experiences from working in prisons, jails, parole, court security, counseling and international field work.

Our faculty's experience offers you, the student, an innovative blend of theory and practice that is crucial for effective professional education. In addition, our faculty take you into the field and let you explore the correctional environment first-hand, which allows you to gain a better understanding of the classroom instruction.

We provide students a solid background in corrections and the broader criminal justice field. Our classes focus on legal issues, management, history, social work and counseling. Our courses also emphasize offender reentry, population management strategies, offender motivation, theory and policy. TU's approach to our corrections program, not only includes aspects of security, law, and policy, but also psychology and criminology to better understand the offenders that students will be working with on a daily basis. You will also be taken into the field to explore the correctional environment first-hand to gain a better understanding of theory and practice.

We will provide you with a solid background for a successful career in corrections. Our coursework will further differentiate you from other candidates:
